9 Struggles of Graphic Designers

Many people think that graphic designing is a walk in the park, but in reality, being a designer is anything but easy. Behind high-tech computers with big screens, graphic designers have to deal with bossy clients, low-res images, played-out fonts, and measly budgets.

HERE ARE 9 FRUSTRATIONS AND STRUGGLES ALL DESIGNERS COULD RELATE TO:

People assume your job is easy to do.

When your computer crashes, it's like the end of the world.

Waiting for large files to save/open is like waiting for pigs to fly.

You hear a lot of "opinions" every day.

Running out of "Undo" commands.

After trying 70 fonts, you still don't like any of them.

Some Fine Arts majors look down on you.

After your graduation, you realize that it's not as easy to look for a job as you thought.

The competition in computer related jobs can be tough.
